It would have been sufficient him to tell his story and leave ralising to his critics. I hear of pole who are very angry that a consed "spy" should be tolerated, or book read. But there are even rily sensible people who make a int of taking extreme sides upon ery question. One of the most arming men, whom some years ago was in the habt of meeting at the book read in the Linited States, was John by the O'Elley, journalist, poet, and triot. He died recently, deeply retreted by men of all parties. He fed England for what he considered reperfaly to Ireland, but there were agishmen whom he loved deepite eir nationality; and he was a man it could not help loving deepite his aggreative views of the questions between the two countries, ow, O'Kiley was, in truth, a spy, and more—he was a traitor to his souns between the two countries, for the mass of the provisions, and in West Austraha. Anyhow, he was a delightful companion, a peet of some distinction, an accomplished author, and the friend of Garrison, Wendell, Phillips, Whittier, and Lowell. As Tennyson loved Gladstone, but hated his Irish policy, I liked and admired Boyle O'Riley as a friend, but hated his attitude towards England. I think his smart was personal; in the privations and

With every disposition to afford help in the detection of cycle thieves, it is not within the four corners of my mandate to insert long notices of such robberies. They are so frequent that compliance would necessitate a considerable enlargement of "the best pennyworth," big as it has become. Owners of cycles must take care of them as best they can, like all other owners of portable property. Too many of them habitually run risks, as, for instance, when they leave costly machines outside public-houses or in front gardens. They can never tell when or where the cycle their may not be on the war path; he is so ubiquitous that he should be regarded as always closes at hand.

The rumour to which we refer is nothing less than this—that there is to be, within the next few months, a general delivery from prison of the Irish "political prisoners," that is to say, of the scoundrels who are at nt serving their time in penal servi-in expiation of their dastardly in expiation of the pro-pts to destroy British life and pro-by the use of dynamite. For the perty by the use of dynamite. For the predit of an Administration which, after all, occupies the proud position of her Majesty's responsible advisers, we decline to believe the truth of this report. In-clined, as Mr. Gladstone and his colleagues whom their existence as a Ministry depends, we refuse to believe that they will be guilty of this cowardly, this abject, surrender to the diotates of those who are the avowed enemies of the sountry. How base such a surrender would be must be clear enough to the mind, she did not forget to two abunchments of the second of keys to the agents of the law and to add the useful information that her door was on the late the second of the late and to add the late that the late of the late and to add the late the late and to add the late the late and to add the late the late the late and to add the late the late late of the late late late of the late l may be, to go to all possible lengths in the way of concession to the de-mands of those Irish supporters upon whom their existence as a Ministry depends, we refuse to believe that ands of those who recollect the circ stances of the crimes for which the estion are now undergoing well-merited punishment. It must not, however, be forgotten that these offences were all committed some years ago, and that a younger generation of electors is growing up which does not electory recollect events that happened in days when those electors were almost children. In order, therefore, that our readers may refrest their memories as to the nature of the record of crime over which the Government is said to intend to parts the sponge of pardon and oblivion, we will just mention in outline what some of those crimes were. Even in the most transpired that he was the sound not undetated he was relly in his own house. more. I have already referred to his clever victory, which, however, pales its ineffectual fires before the success of his stable companion, La Flèche. Concerning the latter tilly, I may nota a curious coincidence. Before racing commenced somebody hoisted the figure 5 on the board; La Flèche's number on the card was 5. This was a straight tip, with a vengeance.

The feature of last Thursday's racing at Newmarket was the defeat of Orme in the Free Handicap, which was the result of the Duke of Westminster sending the pitcher to the well too ofton, the heavy going, an attempt to give too much weight away, and it El Diable's turn of speed. Orme, as I have so often declared, is not a century horse. He is a good "miler," and that is his true estimate. The Duke of Westminster, however, appears to regard him as something phenomenal in the way of horseficial, and so asked him to win three races on successive days at different distances. Orme won over the Speediest horse in England, over the latter's favourite distance, six furiongs; but ho was unequal to the task of giving El Diablo 18lb. "Across the Flat" on the third day.

Meddler, however, showed himself to be a climbing a more and thin set of the speediest horse in England, over the latter's favourite distance, six furiongs; but ho was unequal to the task of giving El Diablo 18lb. "Across the Flat" on the third day.

Action ros. One of the case of Milles v. Lampson came of for hearing. This was an action brought by Mr. James E. Milles, executor of the little Mr. Long, R.A., against Mr. Norman G. Lampson, of 1, Old Bond-street, to recover 1,000gs, the price of a picture of the defendant's wife and daughter, painted by Mr. Long for the adequate. The defence was that he was not bound to take the picture unless he was satisfied with it. Mr. Milles stated in evidence that he had applied to Mr. Lampson for the money, and had been refused. Mrs. Long, widow of the artist, who was dressed in black, and secund to repress with difficulty the emotion excited by the sight of her husband's work, stated that she considered the price of 1,000 guineas for the picture reasonable. She had.

Mr. Lampson had written on the 29th of June, 1890, saying, among other things, "I like the picture very much, and hope it will be a great possession when finished." but that letter was written when only a few sittings had been given.—Norman George Lampson, the defendant, said that in the spring of 1890 he desired to have a picture of his wife, and went to see Mr. Long on the subject. Mr. Long expressed a wish to see his proposed subject, and afterwards took dinner at the witness's house, where he suggested that the child should be included in the picture. Mr. Long muntioned no price, but he did say that the prices were very high, as the artists were ruled by the dealers. Mr. Long also said if the picture, when completed, was not satisfactory, he would prefer the defendants build not take it. He (the defendant), never saw
